【概要】

The main aim of the course is to develop communication and argument skills at an academic level, referring to literature concerning ethical dilemmas in healthcare and eye-opening innovation of medical technology. To achieve this aim, firstly, students focus on critical thinking skills while identifying the issues of each article, clarifying the author's stance on those issues and formulating each own opinion. Secondly, students exercise oral skills including 1) discussion and persuasion skills, 2) communication skills among members, and 3) presentation skills.

【学習目標】

Upon completion of this course, students should be able to:

- 1) read each chapter carefully and identify the main argument of the author,
- 2) summarize the author's stance of each case and make a substantial and comprehensible resume,
- 3) deliver a short presentation to be easily understandable for all other members
- 4) promote dispute among all members.

【実務経験を活かした教育内容】

Most Japanese are not good at English speaking. However, many of them do not have enough occasion to express themselves in English in public, simply. Based on my working experience, I selected the most useful English skills and analyzed how to develop the skills as short as possible.
